Aycliffe Community Primary School is a community where children's rights are learned, taught, practised, respected, protected and promoted. Pupils and the school community learn about children's rights by putting them into practice every day.

- Article 28: Every child has the right to an education. Discipline in schools must respect children's dignity and their rights.
- Article 29: Education must develop every child's personality, talents and abilities to the full. It must encourage the child's respect for human rights, as well as respect for their parents, their own and other cultures, and the environment.
- Article 31: Every child has the right to relax, play and take part in a wide range of cultural and artistic activities.
- Article 13: Every child must be free to express their thoughts and opinions and to access all kinds of information, as long as it is within the law.
- Article 17: Every child has the right to reliable information from a variety of sources, and governments should encourage the media to provide information that children can understand. Governments must help protect children from materials that could harm them.

Reading is an essential life skill; children must acquire good reading skills in order to access the information that will support their development in all curriculum areas. At Aycliffe School reading is prioritised to allow pupils to access the full curriculum offer.

We promote reading for pleasure by providing children with a wide range quality texts to access, both within the context of lessons and in our library. We encourage a positive 'home-school reading partnership', and recommend that parents take time to share books with their children to further develop positive attitudes towards reading. Children take home a reading book that enables them to practice reading, coupled with a book to encourage reading for pleasure and the broadening of

We use reading scheme books so that we can cater for different needs and interests, but also so that we can offer different types of books to broaden children's reading experiences.

At Aycliffe Community Primary School, we have developed a consistent whole-school approach to the teaching of reading. The school's reading policy outlines how we teach our children to read, and the skills and strategies that pupils will be taught.

Aims:

- to allow each child to have an equal opportunity to access high quality provision
- ensure consistency in the teaching and learning of reading throughout the school
- develop reading strategies and skills, accuracy, fluency, understanding and response to texts
- develop the ability to comprehend a variety of texts, both fiction and non-fiction
- develop an interest in, and a love of books, encouraging children to become readers
- engage parents in supporting children's developing skills and encouraging a love of reading

Expectations for the progression of phonics

Aycliffe Community Primary School use Reading Planet Rocket Phonics to deliver their phonics teaching and learning. This Systematic Synthetic Phonics programme has been validated by the DfE. This programme provides a clear, thorough and coherent route through all the alphabetic code (GPCs) required by children to achieve success in word reading in Reception, and to become fluent, confident readers by the end of Key Stage 1 (see appendix 1 for phonics development overview).

Reading in EYFS

- Children in the Early Years Foundation Stage are taught to read through phonics (grapheme – phoneme correspondences-GPCs), following the 'Reading Planet Rocket Phonics' programme.
- Children are taught the sounds that letters make and how to segment and blend them together to 'sound out' and read words.
- There is a systematic and multi-sensory approach to teaching this system of relationships between letters and sounds.
- Children are taught to segment words by identifying the sounds (phonemes) that different combinations of letters (graphemes) make and blending these phonemes together from left to right to read a word.
- Alongside the teaching of phonics is the teaching of words which are not phonetically regular (often referred to as 'tricky words' and 'high frequency words').
- Children are taught to recognise these on sight through a variety of kinaesthetic teaching approaches.
- Reading target books provide focused reading practice of a small group of key letter-sounds and common exception words.
- Pupil Practice Booklets enable children to practise and apply blending and segmenting skills at letter-sound, word, sentence and text levels.
- Rocket Phonics provide a range of reading books that are additional decodable reading practice books. These books are fully aligned to the programme and are assigned to children to practise reading in school and at home, as soon as all the letter-sounds have been taught.

Reading in Year 1

- Reading Planet Rocket Phonics programme continues throughout Year 1.
- Children build on their work in the Early Years Foundation Stage, learning new GPCs and revising and consolidating those learnt earlier.
- It is expected that pupils will have reached the end of phase 6 Reading Planet level which focuses on a more complex code, by the end of year 1.
- In addition, children learn how to read a number of sight words, high frequency words and common exception words.

- Discrete phonics sessions are taught in a 30-minute session daily, with a shorter session in the afternoon which enables children to consolidate what has been taught earlier in the day.
- The phonics screening check is taken individually by all children towards the end of year 1 and provides an indication of whether or not a child will need additional support in year 2.
- Children also read in class every day through the range of lessons provided, but also in Guided Reading sessions which makes use of Rocket Phonics reading target practise books which provide focused reading practice of GPC's and common exception words that the pupils are learning. The three-day approach is used to structure the guided reading sessions (see appendix 2).

Reading in Year 2

- Rocket Phonics Next Steps continues the Rocket Phonics journey into Year 2.
- The programme builds in National Curriculum requirements for Year 2 to ensure children meet and exceed age-related expectations.
- The programme uses the established teaching and learning cycle (Review, Teach, Practise, Apply and Assess) to maintain consistency between year groups.
- Children learn essential literacy skills for the wider curriculum and the transition to Key Stage 2, with a focus on phonics for spelling and writing.
- Children read a range of exciting fiction and non-fiction, levelled reading books to widen vocabulary and nurture a love of reading. These include targeted books for daily guided reading and books that are assigned to children to practise reading in school and at home.
- Children are introduced to, and gradually develop cursive handwriting to support them in becoming confident writers.
- At the start of term 3, children begin to work on fluency through guided repeated oral reading practise (see appendix 4), the impact of which is measured through a fluency test, taken at the start and end of each term (see appendix 5).

Reading in Key Stage Two

- In Key Stage Two, children further develop their skills in reading fluently, for pleasure, information and for comprehension, a wide range of fiction, poetry, plays, non-fiction and reference books or textbooks.
- Children read daily in whole class lessons, independently and during daily guided reading sessions.
- During whole class and daily guided reading sessions the teacher will plan questions that enable pupils to develop skills such as: making predictions, retrieving information, drawing inferences and justifying these with evidence from the text, summarising, and discussing and evaluating how authors use language and the impact on the reader.
- We ensure that children continue to practice reading books that are levelled to ensure a sequential approach to progression across Key Stage two. Pupils take a levelled book home to read, as well as a reading book for pleasure to encourage a love of reading.

- Pupils also work on pace and fluency during weekly sessions of guided, repeated oral reading practise.
- Guided reading sessions involve the school's reciprocal reading approach, either as a whole class or in a group structure.
- Those children who still experience difficulties in reading, receive planned interventions which are mapped onto a provision plan with specific targets. These include the use of Reading Planet Rocket Phonics books which are decodable and combine lower reading levels with age-related interest levels, enabling pupils who still have gaps in their phonic knowledge, to continue to strengthen their skills.
- Teachers read a range of fiction, non-fiction and poetry from class core reading book collections
- Children are also given opportunities to practise their skills and deepen learning within the context of the following independent work (see below for examples of work):
 - Cold comprehension (comprehension test) and warm comprehension (reviewing questions discussed with an adult during a previous guided session)
 - Reading across the curriculum (applying reading strategies across a wide range of texts, including online resources, to develop a rich vocabulary and knowledge)
 - Reading as a reader (making and discussing meaning and identifying and understanding features of a genre)
 - Reading as a writer (reading with a 'writer's eye' in order to understand, for example: how language has been crafted to create different effects; writing techniques and ambitious vocabulary that the children can magpie and use independently in their own writing)
 - Thinking bubbles (active approaches to reading)
 - Reading for pleasure – book talk to develop a love of reading

*

We recognise that all pupils are equal regardless of cultural or ethnic background, religion, social circumstances, gender, sexual orientation, ability and disability. The curriculum and whole ethos of the school demonstrates that diversity is understood, is welcomed and appreciated within the school. Equal opportunities means that all children have the right to a broad and balanced curriculum with which all pupils can engage and achieve.

Appendix 2

Three-Day Approach

Day 1

Book introduction. Children discuss the title and front cover and make predictions. As the adult leading the group reads the text, pupils follow the words using their finger. The adult leads a vocabulary and phonic check, for example, to ensure that children are able to read and understand key words. Pupils begin to build their understanding through key questions.

Day 2

Both adult and pupils read the text together. As a group, they engage in deeper discussion around the adult's questions and any questions that children may have in response to reading. Further vocabulary clarification enables pupils to make deeper meaning.

Day 3

Using a book between two, children read the text in pairs. Whilst one child reads, the other child follows using their finger. Again, a rich discussion takes place around adult questions and children's ideas and questions. A personal response to the text is encouraged, along with comparisons with other texts and authors.

Appendix 4

Guided, Repeated Oral Reading Practise

Repeated Reading is one of the most widely researched reading interventions and has been successful in improving reading fluency skills for students...(<https://www.hdc.lsuhsd.edu>)

1. The teacher reads a piece of text, modelling fluent reading and accurate intonation.
2. The same piece of text is then read by the teacher and children together.
3. The children then read the piece of text 3 times to practise reading with fluency, as teachers catch children in the moment to support fluency development.

Appendix 5

Fluency Test

Pupils' fluency development is monitored using a timed test. A grid containing between eight and ten words at an appropriate level and which are repeated in random order, are presented to each child. At the start of term, the child takes a timed test and records how many words can be clearly read in one minute. The same test is repeated at the end of the term and the results analysed by the class teacher in order to organise extra provision. At Aycliffe Community primary School, results to date have shown an improvement in the vast majority of scores by the end of the term. At the start of the next term, results have often fallen but not regressed completely back to the same score as the start of the previous term, strongly indicating that pupils are benefiting from guided and repeated reading practise.
